Terri stitched up this pretty table runner using a little Christmas panel print and the pattern Holiday Twitter.

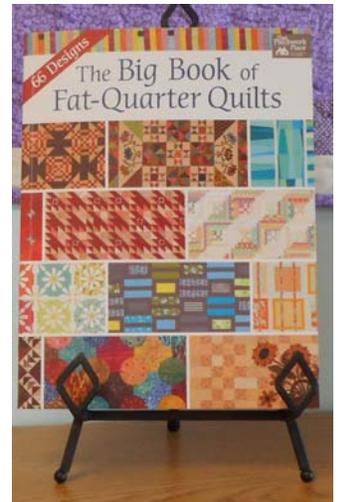

Mr. Snowman would be a nice little project to make for your favorite snow man collector.

This little wall hanging Jingle Bells would look great hanging on a front door. It is small and stitches up in an afternoon.

Looking for some inspiration for using up the huge stack of fat quarters you have collected? This book has over 30 quilt projects for you.

Debbie Johnson's new pattern Square Express sold like hotcakes during Shop Hop. It's a great pattern for working with a layer cake pre-cut.

A darling little flannel group Dyno-myte just arrived. This flannel is so super soft it would make a cute little double sided blanky for a little guy.

I just got in another bolt of fabric of the Sewing with Singer line. Many people bought yardage of each piece in the collection, so you may want to add this one to your collection too.

Check out these 2 new color ways in the Queensland Rainbow Beach collection that just arrived.

I needed a quick fun project to work on, so I grabbed a skein of this yummy tweed Katmandu yarn and started a pair of mittens. They feel so wonderful I can't wait to finish and wear them.

Sometimes our customers have the greatest ideas. A nice lady came in and showed me these great wooden quilt hangers that she found. I tracked them down and have ordered some for the store to sell. I love them! They are unfinished wood so you can stain or paint them to match your décor.

Cooler weather is setting in so I am perfectly content to stay in and sew, although I should be doing some garden cleanup in preparation for cold weather. Oh well there's always tomorrow!
Happy Stitching ~Lisa
