February 2, 2015 Update

What a difference between this week's temperature and last. Last week I was itching to get out and plant something, so I found some unplanted tulip bulbs I had forgotten. I stuck them in one of my outdoor flower pots and that seemed to ease my gardening itch for the time being. This week all I can think about is staying inside by the fire and sewing. To everything there is a season.

One of the projects I'm anxious to try out is making a bag out of this new Tim Holtz fabric. I was disappointed when it came in because we only got a few bolts of the entire collection I ordered, but now I have something to look forward to when the UPS man comes. I love these vintage prints.

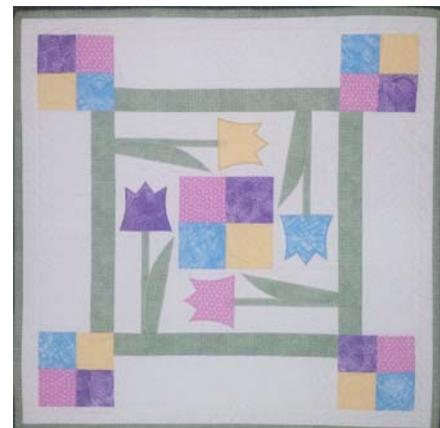

Speaking of vintage we received some new 30's fabrics from Moda. It's really making me want to start a 30's quilt.

Debbie Johnson grabbed up some of the Ranunculous fabric and made a table topper from her Center Stage pattern. Don't you just love this pretty spring design?

In celebration of spring Debbie turned a block that she had published in Quilt makers 100 Blocks magazine into a for sale pattern. It's a quick and easy pattern to whip up in time for Easter.

February 2, 2015 Update

And last but not least YARN! We got more yarn! We now have Cascade 220 100% wool and some really soft Cherub DK. We also received another shipment that has some cotton and linen and the scrumptious Bamboo Pop. And last but not least another shipment of Zauberballs. I had no idea there were so many "Zauberhaulics" out there. They are just so fun I don't know how anybody can resist those little balls of fluff.

Our bus is almost full. If you want to go on this trip call us ASAP!
